PREVIOUS ADMINISTRATIVE APPOINTMENTS

Director of Undergraduate Studies, Department of Philosophy, Emory University, Atlanta, GA, 2014-2016

Deputy Director, Center for Social Media, School of Communication, American University, Washington, D.C., 2005-2006. Developed the Future of Public Media project funded by the Ford Foundation with the aim of exploring public media in a digital era. Conducted and published research on new directions in public media and convened leaders throughout the field to think through problems, challenges, and opportunities facing the field.

Director, Honors Program, The University of Massachusetts Lowell, Lowell, Massachusetts, 2004-2005. Oversaw a university-wide honors program that drew on resources throughout the university to prepare an exceptionally talented group of undergraduate students for graduate school and promising careers.

Director, Gender Studies, The University of Massachusetts Lowell, Lowell, Massachusetts, 2002-2004. Created a strong steering committee of interdisciplinary faculty in the college of arts and humanities to lead a renewed gender studies program. Helped create a faculty fellowship program and a new undergraduate curriculum. Coordinated the university's involvement in the annual women's week in the city of Lowell.

Assistant Director, The National Issues Convention, a deliberative public opinion poll conducted by the University of Texas at Austin and directed by political philosopher James Fishkin and broadcast by PBS, 1995-1996. Coordinated a complex project involving presidential candidates, the University infrastructure and staff, logistics, press relations, major opinion research organizations, and foundations, all the while tending to making the event a sound research opportunity for democratic theorists.
